4. Discussion. Reference (a) sets forth guidelines for all fellowships, scholarships, and grants for Department of Defense (DoD) personnel and is the controlling instruction for this program. The LEGIS Fellows Program educates Navy personnel on the workings of the legislative branch of government. LEGIS fellows will be immediately assigned to follow-on tours in which the education they gained will be used. Fellows receive instruction and hands-on experience in a congressional office through dedicated training and developmental activities; a full-time assignment (normally for 1 year corresponding with one session of Congress) on the staff of a Member of Congress who serves on a Defense-related subcommittee; and liaison with Navy Chief of Legislative Affairs (CLA) and staff of the OLA.

      (1) The LEGIS Fellows Program is designed to broaden the experience level and knowledge that Navy personnel possess in the operation and organization of Congress, while enhancing Navy’s ability to fulfill its role in the national policy development process.
