Reserve Pay

- Drilling LT (O3>4 yrs) earns ~$11K annually working ~36 days per year:
  - 24 drill days (48 drills/1 weekend per month) +
  - 12 days annual training =
  - 36 days/year

- Can increase this amount by performing addition drills and/or active duty days (i.e. AT, ADT, ADSW)

For more information about Reserve Pay, go to: http://www.navyreserve.com/benefits/pay.html
• While in the Reserves, you will continue to be eligible for promotion
  • Promotion timeline roughly the same as that of your AC counterparts
• Superior performance in the “hard jobs” improves your chances of promotion
  • Command early and often
  • Many O3/O4 command opportunities available
• 81% selection rate to O4 amongst SWO’s on the FY13 Reserve Line Selection Board
Retirement Points

• Earn Retirement Points From Active and Reserve Service
  • 1 day on active duty = 1 point
  • 1 drill period = 1 point (four in a weekend)
  • 15 points a year just for being a Reservist
  • Correspondence courses have point values
  • Need to earn 50 points for a “good year”
  • Must serve 20 years (AC/RC) to earn retirement
  • More points earned = more retirement pay

~2.5 Years of Additional Work
Retirement Pay

• An Active Duty retiree will receive ½ of his/her base pay at about age 43

• A Reserve retiree will receive an average of about ¼ of your base pay at age 60
  • BUPERS On-line has individual retirement calculator
  • Example:
    • Retire as an O5 after 23 years service
      • 5 years Active; 18 years Reserve
      • ~$3,200/month; $38,400/year
